The Lost Road - Published in 1913 and updated with three additional stories in 1917, this is a collection of ten of Davis's dramatic and gripping stories. From soldiers who never give up, to how a Boy Scout saved hundreds of jobs and large company from disaster, you will find these stories well worth your time. The stories included are: The Lost Road, The Miracle of Las Palmas, Evil to Him Who Evil Thinks, The Men of Zanzibar, The Long Arm, The God of Coincidence, The Buried Treasure of Cobre, The Boy Scout, Somewhere in France, and The Man Who Had Everything (also known as The Deserter). Includes a commemorative foreword written by John T. McCutcheon. * * * * The Lion and the Unicorn - Published in 1899, these five stories continue Davis's fine tradition of dramatic and gripping writing. A playwright goes to London to make his name, but finds love instead; A wounded soldier on a hospital ship struggles through hallucinations and delirium and refuses to...
