Her ohjoot appeared to be, not to criminate others, but to confess her own guilt, and thus relieve ber troubled conscience; for she felt that she had, in some sense, been a participator m the horrid crimes which she divulged. At the time, it was evident to my mind, that she had no ideathat nei disclosures to me, would ever be made known to the public. The impression, which I then received of her honest sincerity, n, mauis to this day unenaceu. This was some time before her acquaintance with Mr. Host; who, halving recently arrived in New York from Canada, and having heard of her case, called on me to make inquiries respecting it, and was, by me, introduced to her acquaintance. CONCLUSION. The following circumstances oomprise all that is deemed necessary now to subjoin to the preceding narrative: -- After my arrival in New York, I was introduced to the almshouse, where I was attended with kindness and care; and, as I hoped, was entirely unknown. But when I had been some time in that institution, I found that it was reported that I was a fugitive nun; and not long after an Irish woman, belonging to the bouse, brought me a secret message, which caused me some agitation. I was sitting in the room of Mrs. Johnson, the matron, engaged in sewing, when that Irish woman, employed in the institution, came in and told me that Mr. Conroy...
